July 2022

YOU are helping families in need.

A new program "Here's to Our Health" will provide weekly food boxes that contain fresh produce from local farmers to those who are in need in Washington County.

Because of your continuous support and generosity throughout the years to the Washington County Community Foundation, the Foundation was in a position to apply for a one-time grant from the Downing Family Trust and received $200,000! Because of you, food insecurity will be addressed head-on through a partnership with Purdue Extension-Washington County.

It is clear that some of our families need help. A large part of Washington County is considered to be a rural food desert (a low-income tract where a large number or substantial share of residents do not have easy access to a supermarket or large grocery store.) Although many of our families receive TANF and food stamp benefits, finding healthy food choices is a problem in our community, resulting in debilitating health consequences.

That's where your help comes in! Thanks to your support, the Foundation was able to apply for this grant.

The $200,000 will create a program called "Here's to Our Health". This new program will focus on helping improve the quality of life of our residents. "Washington County is a generous county and the donors to the Foundation are no exception. Without them, our Foundation would not have been able to apply for this grant that will have such a huge impact to so many in our community. Lives will change due to their generosity and this program," said Lindsey Wade-Swift, Associate Director, Washington County Community Foundation.

"Here's to Our Health" will provide weekly food boxes containing local produce and nutrient-dense food items. Local medical practitioners will refer families to the program. Accompanying the program are educational lessons on a variety of topics, including how to cook healthier meals, preserve fresh produce, and learning how to read food labels. We are very thankful for your help and the impact you are creating in Washington County.

When someone you love becomes a memory the memory becomes a treasure.
